Not in a moment drops the rose
That in a someer garden grows;
A twilight some of cestacy.
And the red, red leaves at its fingrant heart,
Trembling so in delicious paic.
Fall to the ground with a suiden start.
And the grass is gay with a crimson stain;
And a honey-shre out of the fields of claver,
Heavily flying the garden over,
Brushes the stem as it passes by,
And others fall where the heartsleaves lie;
And air and dew, ere the night is done,
Have stulen the petals, every one. Have stulen the petals, every one

The maple does not said a feature. In one tempestum as carlet rain,
But softly, when the South wind griaves,
Slow wandering over wood and plain,
Oue by one they waver through
The Indian Summer's hazy blue,
And drop at last on the forest mould,
Coral and ruby and burning gold.

And survet's gleam of gorgeous dyes.
We die with one shadow fades away.
But slowly o'er those radiant skree.
There steals the evening cold and gray, and amber and violet linger still.
When stars are over the eastern bill.

I.OSS OF APPETIVE IN THE SPRING.—The decline of appetite in spring is not the symptom or the effect of disease; it is, as it were, the wise forcthought of as electless in stinct, which puts out its blind fearless then due to clear away danger. Instinct, that wonderful impalpable thing, the agent of the Almighty power, the instrument of love Divine; its lesson is, that the body does not require so much food, hence the desire for it is taken away; and if men could only be induced to read that lesson aright, to practice, by not going to the table if they did not likely wait until the next meal, and at no time catting an atom, unless there was a decided desire for it—if such a course were petite, by not going to the table if they did not 'feel like eating any thing,' and then resolutely wait until the next meal, and at no time cating an atom, noless there was a the limited means we have had for applydecided desire for it—if such a course were ing ourselves with judiciously pursued, the spring time would any great extent. be to us a waking up to newness of life, as it is to the vegetable world. But instead of thus co-operating with our instincts, "we take something," bitters, pills, any thing VY to all business entrusted to his care, in Montgomer and adjuding counties.

HAVE, from their excellent qualities, been take something, bitters, pills, any thing Empire Building. Third street, Dayton, as a most valuable and never-failing remedy for up the appetite. It acts like a charm; we up the appetite." It acts like a charm; we speak loudly in its praise, and a dozen or more are induced to follow the example But soon the bubble bursts. Nature was to wake up a little later to find her ward prostrated by serious, and to old persons often faral sickness. To avoid spring diseases, then, abate the amount of lood eaten at As have been demanded by other machines, least one third, and work or exercise with a proportionate deliberation.

The French Pro-testant churches have just celebrated a sim-ilar festival, with relation to their national Reformation, bringing foreibly to mind the closeness with which Scotland followed the lead taken on the Continent, in these stirring events which, three hundred years ago shook Popery to its centre, and gave to our Presbyterian polity its consistency, and first development since the Apostles' days.

Hon John M Botts has published a lous and malignantly personal attack recent-ly made upon him by Mr. Obsdiah Jennings Wise, in the Richmond Ecquirer. Mr. Botts has been one of the best abused men placed it at in the country, and for the sake of his many friends abroad, a vindication was perhaps called for. This assault will powerfully re-act in his favor, as its unfounded character is well understood in Richmond, where young Wise is almost an entire stranger.— The latter endorsed, at random, a variety of groundless rumors, which no one before CASSIMERE AND SILK, from which insulated suffer over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a disse solutation in the system, induced by the poleonous interms of vegetable decay. This distinished is croteed by the action of solar best on wer worl, and rises with the waters yaper from it. While the sam is below the Borison this versor lingure near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it shrough the large into the blood. There is act as an irrisating poleon on the intermit visus an irrisating poleon on the intermit visus and exerciting organs of the body. The lave become torpid and fulls to secreta not only his virus but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the chemistry, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The apteen, the kidneys, and the stomach symmetry pathias with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the fraince of our organism, as I, if in an attempt to expel the nonitous infusion, concentrates the whole blood of the body in the cumulatorgans with congosilve violence. This is the Currat. But in this effort it fulls. Then the FEVIR follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating polson through the other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abstandors the astempt exchanated, and water for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the fits or parcy system of Favian and Adule. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermited the least in it is not removed.

We have absored to find, and have found, an antildote.

Ayer's Ague Cure, which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does care this afflictive disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those ambject to this infection. It taken in season it expels it from the system as it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the diseanse. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from, the great variety of sifections which are induced by this mallgrant influence, such as Remittens Fover, Chili Fever, Dumb, or Masked Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatiam, Gout, Blindenss, Toothische, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations, Painful Affections of the Spiceu, Hysteries, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "Ague Cure," removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the excretories to expel the virus from the system; and these organs by degrees become habited to do this there office of their own accord. Hence arises what we term occoments, and cures the disease.
